WEATHER OF CONCERN

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

- Dry and mild weather pattern with no major wind events expected for at least the next week.
  - High pressure over the west coast will continue dry weather with warm above normal days and cool nights.
  - The lows will warm slightly but remain cool through Tuesday with little change in the day time highs.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

- Santa Ana winds and very low humidities will continue to bring critical fire danger to portions Los Angeles and Ventura Counties.
  - Isolated critical conditions may persist into Sunday over the windiest mountains and valley hills, but will not be widespread enough to warrant an extension of a Red Flag Warning.
  - Elevated fire weather conditions will persist through most of next week due to continued dry conditions especially over the interior.
